Wife of Man She Admired Clucks in Disgust as Jury Returns Its Verdict

Acquitted of the charge of complicity in liquor smuggling operations off the Bahsmas, Mrs. Edith Stevens left the United States District Court in Brooklyn yesterday with old-fashioned maxims of law and morality on her lips, saying she intended to live with her mother and forget this chapter in her life's history.

It took two hours for the jury to agree that the pretty nineteen-year-old agree that the pretty nineteen-year-old girl who told with candor on the stand of her relations with Anthony Cassese, alleged fugitive bootlegger, was without knowledge of the contents of parcels she checked on two occasions on board the Italian's yacht. The jury went out at 3:22 p. m. and returned at 5 to have the conspiracy law repeated. At 5:25 it brought in a verdict of not milty.

Under cross-examination during the morning session Mrs. Stevens testified with great coolness to her relations with Cassese, declaring that she loved him, while she only respected her husband. Her love died two months ago, she said, when she found Cassese was not the hero she had imagined him to be.

Little peals of laughter shook her as she told of meeting Cassese for the first time and fainting with the shock of nearly being run over by his car as she came out of the cemetery with her mother. Temptation Overcomes Prudence

By Thornton W. Burgess

The prudent turns a deafened ear Whene'er he finds the tempter near. -Reddy Fox.

Ever since he was a little fellow just starting out in the Great World this little saying has been known by Reddy Fox. Granny Fox taught it to him, and over and over she charged him never to forget it. Reddy never did forget it. But he didn't always heed it. That was the trouble; he didn't always heed it. It popped into his head as he lay in the tail grass behind some bushes up by Farmer Brown's house and counted the Ducks in a little wire pen just in front of him. Never in all his life had he been more tempted than he was right then.

It would be no effort at all to jump over that little low wire fence, seize one of those young Ducks by the neck, swing him over his shoulder and jump out again. No, sir, it would be no effort at all.

But it would be a foolish thing to do. Reddy knew that. It might get him into a great deal of trouble. If there had been nobody but himself to think of Reddy wouldn't have hesitated an instant. But over in the Old Pasture were four young Foxes, four children of whom Reddy was very proud. They were just big enough to begin to learn the lessons to fit them to live in the Great World. Getting into trouble himself might get them into trouble.

Reddy thought of this as he lay watching those Ducks for food it would have been a very different matter, but he didn't. He knew he didn't. There was no trouble these summer days in getting all he ueeded to eat. He didn't need one of those Ducks and hurry home. He had found out what he had wanted too.

Jug of Liquor Vanishes

Proprietor Escapes, Too, When Reserves With Nightsticks Come to Aid

Detectives Martin Seehy and Neil farren were mobbed last night when they undertook to make a liquor raid n Posturo's restaurant, 436 East Ninth Street. Men and women who were eatng in the place rushed the detectives, disarmed them, hustled them into the street and were beating and kicking them when the reserves arrived from the Fifth Street police station.

The proprietor of the restaurant was reed by the detectives' assailants, who the other, his wife, were rushed to the street.

There the crowd was able to get at them to better advantage. In the struggle Posturo tore himself loose and vanished. A man snatched the jug from his captor's hand and made off with it. Men and women seized Mrs. Posturo and attempted to wrest her from the policemen's grasp, while others set upon the detectives so fiercely they were boren to the pavement.

Some one telephoned to headquarters and the reserves were sent from the Fifth Street police station. Sheehy and Farren, who had clung to tehir one remaining prisoner and used her to some extent as a shield, were battered and bruised and the center of a furious crowd when the reserves charged through the street with nightsticks swinging.

NEW DRAPERIES

For New Homes and to make Old Homes New

Here is a thought that turns a little toward Autumn. It concerns the new draperies and fabrics—the very newest, we might say, that we can find, here and abroad. And it carries a pertinent suggestion to those who will make new homes this Fall, or who are planning to refurnish the old home.

First

-we approach the heavier fabrics — some of the loveliest weaves and richest colorings known to the draper's art. For instances-

Poplins and reps, $1.25 and $1.50 a yard. Armures, $2.85 to $4.50 a yd.

Damasks, $3 to $8 a yard. Silk Damasks, imported, $10 to $22.50 a yard. Tapestries, a very fine collection, embracing both needle-point and imitation, $3 to $22.50 a yard. Velvets, plain, figured, striped, $2.50 to $12 a yard.

Next

—come the Sunfast fabrics—guaranteed not to fade, and for that reason so very desirable for draperies and overhangings Plain colors, $1.95 to $2.50 yd Figured and striped, $3.25 to $5 a vard. And then-—the aisle of cretonnes—won-derfully colorful, widely varied in pattern, with a generous helping of unique and fantastic designs. Domestic cretonnes, 32c to $1.75 a yard.

Double width cretonnes, including both cotton and linen thread block cretonnes, $1 to $7.50 a yard.

Portieres

Imported cretonnes, 60e to this little excursion down the Avenue of draperies. Velours in all the wanted colorings, $19.50 to $24.75 a pair.

Curtains -can be counted by the hundred -imported and domestic. -French and English sheet net curtains, $10.50 to $19.50 a pr.

Swiss Point, Duchess, Point Gere, Irish Point, Brussels and Tambour lace curtains and panels range from the dainty lace edge patterns at $7.45 a pair, to the more decorative and period styles at $75 a pair. Panels are $9 to $25 each. Filet net curtains, figured and bordered, $2.75 to $8.50 a pair.

Voile, scrim, and marquisette curtains, $1.50 to $4 a pair. Casement curtains finished with fringe are very smart. In border designs, plain, $14.50 a pair; figured or stenciled, $5.50 to $6.50 a pair.

Heavy net panels with hand-made Italian filet borders, and hand-made linen fringe, $24

And these-Tapestry scarfs, $2 to $34

Table covers, $4.75 to $12.75 Couch covers, $5.50 to $39.75 Curtain materials by the yard —plain, figured, striped—25c to Novelty nets in the newest weaves, 35c to $1,75 a yard.

Shades, awnings and slip covers made to order. Cedar chests and folding

Hand-made laces from every corner of old Europe—Point Venise, Flanders, Cluny and such, for motifs, table covers, runners, spreads.

In brief—the kind of a drapery store that you would naturally expect the Wanamaker Store to have.
